GEORGE STREET TO CIRCULAR QUAY

[illegible][illegible][illegible][illegible][illegible][illegible][illegible]

The fine steamer Namoi, belonging to the H.R.N.S.N. Company, which had been chartered to convey the members of Parliament and their friends down the harbour, was moored at the Circular Quay at the berth immediately to the south of the Iberia, and within the enclosure that had been reserved for the valedictory ceremony. Very early in the afternoon the ladies and gentlemen to whom tickets had

Among throat-cutting steamers that took part in the demonstration was Messrs. W. Howard Smith and Company's ship Albatross, which was captained by the admirable arrangements made and carried out by him in order to ensure to those on board a complete view of the scene. The vessel was fitted with a special view platform on the main deck. As the privilege of going on board the vessel could only be secured by the purchase of a ticket at a price which was prohibitive as to the select gathering on board the vessel, numbering fully 50 persons. The Burmah, which had been preceded by the Newcastle Company's new steamer Newcastle, did not leave the wharf until 2 o'clock, and was very soon round Miller's Point and abreast of the Circular Quay, where it was found that the troopships were still moored. The anchor was cast off, and the vessel proceeded to the wharf to enjoy the magnificent spectacle presented to them. The wharf alongside the Burma and Australasian could observe the burgundy of the gun emplacements, and over a large area of the wharf the Burmah could see the water, and gave a good indication of the general situation ashore. The Burmah was moored in such a position that splendid panoramic views of the harbor and the city of Sydney were obtained. The spectators display was one sufficient view. Shortly after rounding Bradley's Head, however, the Australasian was seen approaching the Heads by the eastern passage, having got ahead of the Iberia, which appeared to be going dead slow. As the former vessel got near the Burwah three ringing cheers were given by those on board the latter vessel, and the German band also played "The Girl I left behind me" and "Kun Britanniens." The Australasian returned the compliment by dipping her ensign, and the artillery on board kept up running fire of shells as both vessels cleared the Heads, the troopship being in advance. At this point a fine view of the cliffs was obtained, and fully 2000 persons were seen

THE INFLEXIBLE.

The fire steamer inflexible was placed at the disposal of the relatives and friends of the deceased, and proceeded to London by Mr. J. Halstead, and fully 400 persons availed themselves of the liberal offer. The steamer, in company with the others who were bound for the tropics, afforded an excellent view of the vessels which were coming off their relative to military service on a foreign shore. Her commander, Mr. J. H. Quay, a well known passenger, also afforded an excellent view of the vessels which were coming off their relative to military service on a foreign shore. He turned up the rigging, and occasionally greeted those aboard the inflexible with ringing cheers. For some considerable distance outside the Heads, after the other boats had been back to the wharves, the inflexible remained there, and on parting the heartfelt prayer of many uttered in the words, "God bless you, my boys, and may you have a safe return." At that moment the ship disappeared from sight, and it was not until long afterwards, some time almost alone between the Heads, and the yards of those agents of Vantage on board the troops were met by a party of Sydney men, who gave them a last friendly salute, and again, and on the side squaring away and making for Sydney she accompanied with the cheers of the troops. The inflexible returned to her anchorage, where she lay till the morning, when she pressed their appreciation of the liberality of assistance in warm terms.

The Port Jackson Steamship Company's fine steamer, Brighton, under the command of Captain David Francis, left the company's jetty, Circular Quay, just after breakfast got underway, with a large and respectable assemblage on board, and kept the Iberia and Australasia company down to the finish. Owing to the vessel being so crowded, the passengers were not permitted to go on deck, and the view was lost everything that place, and the visitors on the Brighton were afforded opportunity of which they availed themselves most heartily of bidding the departing soldiers adieu with vigorous cheers and the waving of handkerchiefs and hats. The ship was not seen until it was long after dark, and about half-past six, everyone appearing thoroughly satisfied with the outing.

Altogether there must have been over 100 steamers on water, and it was marvelous that there were not more accidents than those recorded. The steamer City of Grafton had about 400 passengers on board, the fare paid by which have been generously given to the Patriotic Fund by the directors of the C. and N. S. N. Company. Sir B. Ditt's hand was on board, and uninvited the proceeds considerably. The City of Grafton accompanied troops outside the Heads for about ten miles, returned to port at about half-past 6, without a single accident. The ship was the property of the Government, going to the Sudan, and she also kept well alongside troops.

were about 300 metropolitan police and 80 trooper attendance, and the men were inspected by the Inspector-General of Police (Mr. E. Feaberry). There were also present Deputy Inspector-General Morrisett, Superintendent G. Reid, and Superintendent Myland. After the 150 men left by train for the Circular Quay for the purpose of keeping order there, while others were dispatched to different points along the route from the barracks to the quay to assist in preserving order. The remainder of the police, mounted and on foot, escorted the procession to the barracks to the wharf.

The day's proceedings were unfortunately marred by accident that resulted in the death of two persons, injury more or less serious to others. This unfortunate affair occurred in consequence of the Florida and the steamship Nemesis being in collision just as the troopship was rounding the Inner South Head. From Captain W. F. Deary, commander of the Nemesis, we have received a statement referring to the circumstances attending the collision, and it is set forth as follows: The Nemesis, of Messrs. Huddart Parker and Company's line of steamers, trading between Melbourne, Sydney, and Newcastle, left the company's wharf at Melbourne, Victoria street, last night past 7 o'clock (March 3) en route for the service of conveying troops to Sydney.

Several other minor accidents occurred. A man fell off board from the steamer Australian near the lighthouse, a considerable amount of commotion was occasioned by a boat being fastened to the buoy, and another vessel, speedily, a boat from the Bow and Pig lighthouse proceeding putting off and rescuing him. He was but little the worse for his ducking. Then a man either fell or jumped off board of the City Circular pump, near the Centurion, but he also recovered.

At about 1:50 p.m., a boy named Philip Malley, 17 years of age, residing with his parents at No. 384, Kent-street, fell from one of the skylights on the roof of the Goods shed street market, shortly before the procession passed through the city. He fell some 60 feet, and was seriously injured. The driver, H. Russell, who has been so severely injured, was also rescued.

He looked at Mr. McElhiney's account; it showed that McElhiney retained $200 a month, and he paid $200 out of $275, with a balance of $75. He paid $20 odd; he, however, retained notes for $200 from witnesses; during the Government service he had been paying $200 a month. He did not know the whereabouts of the money. Although the jury have recommended you to mercy on account of your very good character, I must say that I cannot join with them in such a recommendation. Your case, however, will be investigated with most searching care, and so far as it is possible to ascertain the whole truth of the circumstances of this case, the facts will be ascertained. An order was made against the publicans and others from supplying him with liquor for a period of 12 months.

At the NEWTON POLICE COURT, yesterday, before Mr. W. D. S.M. Robert W. M. Diamond, for main-son of child, was ordered to pay 10s. a week for 12 months, together with 6s. 10d. costs. Twenty-one cases under the Municipal Act were transacted by the justices of nuisances of the boroughs of St. Peter, Peterman, and Murrumbidgee, but none of them were of public interest. Ellen O'Brien v. Margaret O'Brien.—This was an information against defendant for impairing his health by the excessive use of liquor. A prohibition was granted for 12 months to all licensed publicans and others licensed under the Act.

would I address for your personal use. I left the party a few days before Christmas, and Mr. McAllister dies from exhaustion on January 4, with his two mates near him and plenty of food, how my tone could mislead in stating nothing was wrong when I left them, which I again repeat; they were quite well, and making horsehoe nails. Mr. Ricketson has gone to his home at Cumbogoning station, so my reply must be to him as well as myself. The telegram also is further incurred as to my exploring on behalf of Melbourne capitalists, and expense. My party was organised and equipped solely at my own expense.

we have three reasons for desiring the English Government to annex New Guinea, and the first is the securing a well-stocked market. The people of Australia, says the Spectator, "consider that interest in New Guinea is a serious one, because that island can supply much labour." It may be difficult to say it was that led Sir THOMAS McILWRAITH to the British flag hoisted in New Guinea; nobody in Australia needs to be told that, these colonies generally, coloured labour is either employed nor sought, and that of the Convention that the result of the annexation of New Guinea will be the bringing of any supplies of red labour to Australia. Only one of the colonies of Australia employs South Sea labour, and in that colony the traffic is largely discouraged by the Government. In that colony there is any use for such labour. All this is sufficiently well known in this part of the world, but does not seem to be known in England. A short time ago an English medical journal gravely furnished its readers with a

The writer alludes to the fear that "there is either no or else no means, for our growers to do whatever is necessary for securing to them a constant and important trade with continent of Europe," but he suggests as "the quickest, easiest, and best way to secure such a result, constitution of a national syndicate of growers, with the necessary funds for building of proper cellars," &c. If we are mistaken, suggestions similar to this have

Let it be shown that investment will yield a handsome return, people will come forward to take part in the project. The difficulty is

In the project, the difficulty in case of growing wine on a large scale for the European market seems to be proving satisfactorily that such a profit can be made. Meanwhile, it is not surprising if those who are actually engaged in wine-growing, and who find that they are obtaining fairly satisfactory returns in the Rie, coming from Barber, while General Wilson would probably maintain his position without any difficulty against an attack of even 20,000 Arabs. The difficulty is one of commissariat, and it is obvious the desert route cannot long be regarded as safe as before Kharama fell. The Mahdi is believed to be in a militant mood, flushed with his success, and it is quite possible that the road to Korti may be barred by the advancing hordes before preparation is made by the transport of the galling 1000 man from the river to Gakdul, supposing that desert route remains free. It is not probable that Sir Charles Wilson may be ordered to fall back on Gakdul, abandoning the ground gained by the brilliant victories at Atbara and Khartoum, so as to be within easy reach of the Commander-in-Chief, so as to be within easy reach of the Commander-in-Chief. The Government will realize the peril of the position, and the necessity which exists for meeting the crisis by vigorous and determined measures.

DEFENCE OF THE COLONY.

We understand that the immediate duty of the departure of the 2nd South Wales Dragoons on March 8, the Colonial Secretary made arrangements for securing as far as possible under existing circumstances the defense of the colony. Five thousand additional rifles were ordered from England, which, on arrival, will make up the stand of arms here for very nearly 15,000. At the same time an order was sent to the various rounds of ammunition. It is reported that there have been made with the Hilsen, the officer in command of the Naval Brigade, which, when called into effect, will enable the members to have nightly drills, instead of four times a month, as at present. Arrange-members of the Volunteer Naval Artillery Brigade can in their hours of leisure be constantly drilled on shore. To effect this purpose, certain requirements will have to be made by the Government, so that no time may be lost in going to the distant places where these guns are at present stationed. The system of harbour defence is also under consideration, and will, when matured, be submitted to Parliament.

It is understood that valuable assistance has been rendered to the Government by the Admiral and officers of the Imperial Academy in the way of advice and suggestions for improving, if necessary, a perfect defence of the colony.

POSTAL TELEGRAPHS AND THE NEW SOUTH WALES CONTINGENT

We have been requested by the Permanent-General to submit a report for the 14th section of the Act 31st Victoria, No. 4, certain postal privileges attach to certain persons employed in the army or navy, and to publish the clause referred to, for the information of the friends of the New South Wales Contingent. The clause reads:—“Letters not exceeding one half ounce in weight, and not exceeding one penny in postage, shall be transmitted or delivered unless (in the case of a letter forwarded as last aforesaid) there shall be on the face thereof the name of the writer, and his class or description in the vessel, regiment, corps, or detachment to which he belongs, and the signature of the officer having command of such vessel, regiment, corps, or detachment; nor unless (in the case of a letter addressed as last aforesaid) there shall be specified on the superscription thereof the vessel, regiment, corps, or detachment to which the person to whom it is addressed belongs. But this section shall not apply to letters addressed to or forwarded to any commissioned officer in the service of the army, or navy, or midshipman or mate in the navy.” It will be seen that this privilege applies to correspondence to or from all members of the New South Wales Contingent, except commissioned or warrant officers.

VICTORIAN CONTINGENT FOR THE SOUDAN.

Although the Government have not yet considered the advisability or otherwise of raising the offer of sending a Victorian contingent to the Sudan, the Minister of Defence (says the Melbourne Telegraph) has not remained idle inasmuch as possible measures that might be made upon the resources of his department. The names of all who last month volunteered for active service in Egypt have been carefully recorded, and Mr. Sargood has also called upon his officers to collect full information on all essential points in the event of a speedy equipment of a Victorian force being asked for by Parliament.

THE OFFER OF TROOPS FROM OTHER COLONIES.
[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

MELBOURNE, THURSDAY.

At a meeting of the Cabinet held to-day the Ministers were aware of three hours occupied in the consideration of various matters connected with the offer recently made by the Government to send a Victorian Contingent to the Sudan. In the least despatch received from the Imperial Government it was intimated that the colony could, independently, or jointly with the other colonies, despatch a force to Egypt in August or September, in time for the autumn campaign, its assistance would be gladly accepted. Since the Victorian offer was made the aspect of affairs in Europe has been invade. In the discussion on that question and the assistance of the colony generally the Ministers were ably assisted by the Hon. Mr. Sturt, Mr. J. G. Macdonald, Mr. W. S. Worthington, Captain Thomas, and Colonel Dwyer. Noting definite has been disclosed as to the views of the Government relative to offering the assistance now invited by the Government of the United States, the Hon. Mr. Sturt should communicate with the other colonies on the subject, and that any further action should be of a formal character. It is a pity that the colony in respect of delegations to the South Australian Government, regarding that the convention which the Cabinet have agreed on is, that Parliament, which now stands prorogued to the 13th of March, 14, 15, and 16, should not be opened until the 1st of the month, when, if necessary, it can be called for the purpose.

ADELAIDE, THURSDAY.

His Excellency the Governor sent a letter to Colonel Richardson, expressing his regret that he was unable to visit the tropicist liberia, and conveying his best wishes to the troops.

The Acting Chief Secretary is not yet in position to make any statement with regard to the situation of the Government relative to the offer of troops for the Sudan, and it is not proposed to summon Parliament earlier than the 1st of March.

Private Seale, who left here on route to Sydney by the steamer Victoria yesterday, has a letter in the Register of to-day, in which he expresses his thanks for the kind treatment he received here.

COBARGO, THURSDAY.

Messrs. Clarke and Giffen, members for this electorate, addressed a large meeting of electors here last night. Both speakers were in favour of the Government's policy of action of the Government in sending troops to Egypt, and announced their intention to vote against the action taken. They were attentively listened to, and their sentiments on every subject treated, unanimously approved.

NO NEED OF INTERNAL IMPROVEMENTS are contained in Governor Macdonald's annual message, and that portion of the House of Assembly which is in favour of the expenditure of the £100,000 for the same, is in favour of the expenditure of the £100,000 for the same.
